[1] Helping the community is one of the questions that many people keep asking themselves without taking any form of action. However, two great Moroccan ladies have responded empowerment of education in the country.

[2] Fatna Lemdersi helped the community in her own way. When her husband died, this woman from a large family in Figuig took over the management of family properties and decided to help build a school 16 years ago.

[3] Rather than helping local associations as many other people do, Lemdersi decided to donate an amount of nearly 6 million dirhams to finance the construction of a national school of business and management (ENCG) in Oujda, the first of its kind in the east of Morocco. The school started with 100 students. Today, 1000 students join this institution each year. So far, it has seen the graduation of 10 groups. On the 10th anniversary of the ENCG, and in recognition of the dedication of this incredible woman, Mohammed I University of Oujda honored Fatna Lemdersi by naming the school's amphitheater after her.

[4] Najiya Nadir, another Moroccan businesswoman, volunteered to fund the construction of schools in the region of Settat. She signed two partnership agreements with local authorities in February 2019 after donating 12 million dirhams to build schools in the region.

[5] Thanks to Nadir's donations, a high school will be built in Oulad Fares, a small rural area in Settat Province. Nadir said that the purpose behind her initiative was to contribute to quality education in the country, especially in rural areas. "When schools are 15 or 20 kilometers from the children, they face a lot of challenges such as exposure to drug use or sexual abuse, especially girls," says Nadir.

[6] Najiya Nadir emphasized the importance of building schools. Poverty and the absence of schools drive many students, especially girls, to drop out of school at an early age. The only guarantee to protect young people is to provide them with the best conditions for education. "I call on citizens who have the financial ability to contribute to the implementation of social projects, especially in villages and rural areas," she says.

Model answers (any appropriate answer is accepted)

Task 1: I prepare for my exams in different ways. First, I make a timetable and divide the subjects over several weeks, so I do not leave everything for the last days. Second, I revise my lessons every evening and write short summaries of the main ideas. Third, I practise with past exams and check my answers to see my mistakes. Moreover, I study with my classmates because explaining a lesson to others helps me remember it. Finally, I sleep well and take short breaks so that I stay calm and focused.

Task 2: Why Is There Violence in Our Schools? Violence in schools has become a serious problem in Morocco. Several causes explain this phenomenon. First of all, some students come from families where parents are violent or do not spend enough time with their children, so they copy this behavior. Moreover, violent films, video games and social media show aggression as normal. Another cause is the influence of bad friends and the use of drugs, which make some young people lose control. Finally, overcrowded classes and the lack of counsellors and activities mean that teachers cannot notice problems early. To conclude, violence in schools has social, family and educational causes, and we must all work together to solve it.
