Moroccan football has prospered in recent years at all levels. The national team's heroic performance in FIFA World Cup-2022 started a series of astonishing achievements.

[1] The accomplishments of Moroccan football are the result of a long-term project which started with the National Sport Conference in 2008, where King Mohammed VI launched a huge project to modernize Moroccan sports. The country established Mohammed VI Football Academy at a cost of $13 million, aiming mainly at developing football at the national level by identifying and training talents. The academy provides education as well as sporting development, with study spaces, player lodgings and physical preparation zones.

[2] Investing in football was key to transforming the sports sector in Morocco. The national federation prioritized developing the sporting infrastructure in the country, building new stadiums and renovating the existing ones. More than 8.7 billion dollars is invested in railways up to now. The country has invested 41 billion dollars in projects to host the African Cup of Nation-2025 and the World Cup-2030. In 2025, the Morocco-2030 Foundation was established to manage the organization of the 2025 AFCON and the 2030 World Cup in terms of planning, infrastructure and financial governance.

[3] The organization of major competitions represents a diplomatic gain for Morocco. Faithful to its African identity, Morocco makes its stadiums and infrastructure available to CAF and several African nations, believing that Africa progresses when its nations advance together. The opening of the new Prince Moulay Abdellah Stadium in a match between Morocco and Niger symbolizes the country's promise to support the growth of Africa.

[4] Hosting international events provides the country with large tourism revenues and economic investments. Many African federations regard the country as a source of inspiration. Moroccan fans earned global respect for their country through their high level of civilization. They are looked upon with great respect, as descendants of an honored civilization.

[5] Morocco's message to the world is clear: its ambition is not only to win matches, but to win hearts, minds, and friends. By opening its doors to African citizens in different competitions, the Kingdom shows its identity through excellence and solidarity.

Task 1: First, he used to be shy and quiet, but now he is confident and speaks freely in front of others. Second, he used to waste his time, whereas now he is serious about his studies and organizes his time well. Moreover, he has become more generous and helps everyone around him. Finally, I am proud of him because these changes made him a better person.

Task 2: Helping People in Need Last month, my friends and I organized a charity campaign at our school. We collected food, clothes and toys from our neighbors and classmates, and then we gave them to a local association that helps poor families. We were very happy to see the smiles on the children's faces. Helping others is important for several reasons. First, it makes people in need feel that they are not alone. Second, it creates solidarity and strengthens relationships in society. Moreover, it teaches us to be generous and responsible. In conclusion, even a small gesture can change someone's life, so we should all take part in such actions.
